P-Noy flies to Naga to brief Robredo kin

Day 3 of search: No trace of DILG chief, 2 pilots

MASBATE CITY—A pillow used by Interior Secretary Jesse Robredo was dropped on Sunday at the site where his plane went down, in the hope it would help in the efforts to find him.

The search area was expanded yesterday with foreign dive instructors joining 300 military and civilian rescuers looking for the wreckage of the light plane that crashed at Masbate Pass on Saturday with Robredo and three others on board.

Dropping the pillow in the crash site was in accordance with folk belief that if a pillow used by a missing person is dropped in the place where that person disappeared, that person will reappear, according to Naga City Councilor Elizabeth Labad.

Labada, who was with the group from Robredo's hometown that flew to Masbate City on Sunday morning from Legaspi City in Albay, brought the pillow to be dropped in the crash site.

She said the pillow was given to her by Robredo's wife, Leni, who chose to stay at the family home in Naga City with their three young daughters and other family members and close friends to wait for news about P-Noy.

Church goes after Ateneo professors for heresy

By Kristine L. Alave

IT'S NOT exactly an inquisition but 150 members of the Ateneo de Manila University faculty may face investigation for heresy, and sacred—not excommunicated—if found guilty.

Bishop Leonardo Medrano, in an interview over Church-run Radio Veritas yesterday, called for an investigation of the Ateneo faculty members who signed a statement declaring support for the controversial reproductive health (RH) bill being pushed by the Aquino administration in Congress.

Medrano, the permanent council member of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) and chair of the Episcopal Commission on Canon Law, said the university should make sure that the teachers who endorsed House Bill No. 4244 were not teaching concepts against Church laws.

"That has to be investigated. The first principle of Canon law about this matter is that we don't allow teaching that which is against the official teachings of the Church. Now, if there is somebody who is giving instructions against the teachings of

FBI agents hounded PH freedom fighters in US

By Cynthia D. Balana

SEPTEMBER 1979. Somewhere in the desert of Arizona, a group of Filipino freedom fighters had just finished their secret bomb-and-explosive training, consisting of an American Vietnam war veteran who shared their hatred of dictators.

Tired and hungry, they drove to a nearby restaurant to eat and one of them, Raul Daza, a practicing lawyer in San Francisco, California, made the mistake of using his credit card to pay for the bill. That gave them away to the Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI).

Hector Alvarez, a member of a group called Movement for a Free Philippines, mentioned how they were trained in the United States and their activities monitored by the FBI.

'He always wanted to be back in Naga'

By Rolando Fabian Mangaray

EVEN BEFORE his last flight on Sunday, Interior Secretary Juan Robredo had been taking extra steps after his last of seven surgeries, using any means of transportation available, to visit his family in Naga City.

"The way is fairly easy, and he always wanted to be back in Naga just to be with his family, and for him [any mode of transportation would do]," Interior Undersecretary Rico Pano told reporters after a meeting here at La Salle Green Hills in Marikina City yesterday.

Pano said Robredo was booked on a Cebu Pacific flight to Manila at 5:30 p.m. on Sunday, but because he wanted to get on Pango earlier, he changed the initial booking and took a private plane instead.

"So OK, Department [Robredo] said I have another plane," Pano quoted Robredo as saying.

"I assumed that he was taking the regular airplane that we usually took ... but I didn't know that they arranged something there as the Cebu airport," said Pano, who attended the same conference Robredo attended at the Cebu Convention Center on Sunday.

He said Robredo wanted to get to Naga so badly that even the pilot he wanted to fly the private plane was not the same one who usually took him there.

"I know the pilot of the plane that he usually took, so my initial instinct was to call up that pilot," Pano said.

At 2:30 p.m., Robredo left the convention center Pano said. The Pango Service, he said, took off at 3:00 p.m. from Manila-Cebu International airport (MNL). Then at 3:23 p.m., said Robredo, Robredo's aide de camp, retired Col. Ricardo Brando, chief of the Office Center for Airborne Security?

(PAGS-7) on MNL, he said. "We are loaded back. There's something a problem with the propeller, the engine, the passenger have to wait," Pano said, quoting the NOR message from Robredo.

Pano and Marino airport authorities booked Robredo on another Cebu Pacific flight to Manila, taking off at 5 p.m.

At 4:22 p.m., Pano said Robredo wanted to say that the flight plane was making an emergency landing in Manila. PANO-T personnel called Robredo, Pano said, and when Pano asked how Robredo was, Robredo replied that all of them were all right and Robredo was talking to his wife.

"That was the last last-minute call," Pano said. "To be the last-minute we were together in Cebu. I was the last official that he talked to before he took that plane," Pano added.

RESCUE OPERATION Divers from the Philippine National Police, Philippine Coast Guard and Philippine Navy lead efforts to recover and provide aid for the search and rescue of the missing Interior Secretary Juan Robredo in Marikina City on Monday.

SEARCH AND RESCUE CHIEF Transport Secretary Mar Roxas tells reporters in Marikina City that the search operation was now concentrated on a 1-kilometer diameter area off the Marikina Bay area.

Robredo said the yellow van dropped in the creek area, about 5 kilometers from the shore, around 30 p.m. Sunday in Basil Cagay, a nearby side of Robredo, who went there on a business trip.

P-Noy goes to Naga

President Aquino, who was heading the efforts to find the wreckage of the plane, wanted to Naga City yesterday to brief Robredo's wife on the developments in the search.

Mr. Aquino had been in Manila since July since early Sunday morning, when he launched the search for Robredo, whom the President refused to give up as dead, presidential spokesperson Rolando Laurente said in Manila.

Laurente said Mr. Aquino's departure from Manila should not be seen as "an indication of anything."

"The President [will] personally brief Juan Robredo on the search and rescue operations in Manila," Laurente said. "It does not imply any change at this point," he added.

Laurente said Mr. Aquino was returning to Manila by night train, but the search for Robredo remained a priority for the President Aquino's departure from Manila.

Government condemns

Laurente denied claims that the Aquino administration had stood still since Robredo went missing Sunday.

He said Mr. Aquino managed to lead the search operations in Manila because of the long weekend brought on by the Muslim holiday of Eid al-Fitr (yesterday) and today's observance of the 28th anniversary of the death of the President's father, Rep. Benigno S. Aquino Jr.

"A number of us who are cabinet officials and staff working and the President is in touch with all his cabinet officials," Laurente said. "So let us assure the public that the business of government continues and there is no effect as to government functioning," he said.

All agencies under Robredo's agency, the Department of the Interior and Local Government (DILG), are all functioning, Laurente said.

There had been talk since Sunday that Mr. Aquino had wanted to stay in Manila until Robredo's body was found.

When asked about it, Laurente said Mr. Aquino wanted to be sure that the search was going on and that he hoped for a "rescue" but the question of staying in Manila was "going to be a day-to-day decision," Laurente said.

"We the moment, however, is all depends on the situation," Laurente said. "There is a clear that it is going on right now," he added.

Foreign divers

"Transportation Secretary Mar Roxas, Department Undersecretary for the search, said reporters in Manila yesterday that foreign technical divers who could dive to depths up to 200 meters had joined the search. The technical divers were mostly Americans based on Malaysian facilities here.

"The search covers a distance of 1 km to 2 km from the coast line of Marikina City with a depth of 40 meters to 80 meters," Pano said.

He said the search area was extended by 30 km from the Marikina coast—about the same length as the western coast of Tinian Island, which lies parallel to the coastline of Marikina Island.

The area covers the Marikina River and parts of Ticao Bay, which separates Ticao Island from Socorro, and Ticao Bay from Socorro, and Ticao Bay from Socorro.

Robredo previous has three main islands: Marikina, Ticao, and Socorro.

Dangerous place

Pano said the divers were concentrating on an area within the plane's flight envelope was found on Sunday and where some equipment had dived into the water.

"The plane is dangerous, from 200 to 300 meters from it is a mine area," Pano said. "The plane is deep—impossible for divers to reach."

Pano said the current was very strong in the area where wreckage of a wreckage was found Sunday.

"Probably the wreckage on the surface is being used [searched] by the current," he said.

On Sunday morning about a portion of the right wing of the plane and a copy of the flight logbook were found in the area, where what appeared to be the cockpit and some parts on the surface were damaged by some equipment.

Latest from depths

The technical divers went to the area yesterday and found the supposed tail fin of a depth of 60 meters.

At the last press briefing at 4 p.m., Pano said a wreckage had been found in the area, which was about 200 meters from the plane's wreckage.

He said debris found in the area, which was about 200 meters from the plane's wreckage, included plastic, glass parts and other objects.

"It was not clear, however, whether the debris came from the wreckage of the plane," Pano said.

A British diver took video pictures of the tail fin and the debris, he said.

A team of scuba divers from the Navy and the Coast Guard was searching the debris, he added.

The team was Pano's team carrying Robredo to Naga City from Cebu City yesterday in a blue boat so it was attempting an emergency landing around 2 p.m. on Sunday.

Robredo's widow, Interior Undersecretary Patricia Pano, escaped from the damaged plane and was rescued by fishermen.

Missing under Robredo, are the pilot, Capt. Jerry Balintona, chief of the plane and CEO of AirAsia Air in Cebu, and Robredo's aide de camp, retired Col. Ricardo Brando.

Helping search

Pano said in a radio interview on Sunday that Robredo was helping the search for the wreckage from his hospital bed by describing where and how the plane went down.

Robredo was hospitalized for some time in Cebu, President Aquino said from his hospital bed, Pano said.

In the case is communication, the plane went down, Robredo's aide de camp, retired Col. Ricardo Brando, said.

Robredo's aide de camp, retired Col. Ricardo Brando, said.

Pano said, receiving the body guard's description of the plane's last moments.

"When he regained consciousness, he was still in the plane. The water had risen up to his chest in the cabin and he tried to go up for Secretary Robredo but could not find him. He was out of the cabin," Pano said.

Relatives

In total of the 380,000, Robredo, 54, was among the 340,000 among Philippine National Police. He was popular with the public because the Robredo is involved in the police and in the local government.

In recent months, he had ordered investigation into alleged financial irregularities in seeking construction of police stations and purchase of bulk supplies and vehicle fuels.

Robredo was also playing a key role in the dismantling of private armies allegedly deployed by some powerful provincial governors and city mayors afraid of congressional and local elections next year.

Robredo is also the city of Cebu. In 2008, he was appointed a Ramon Magsaysay award, Asia's equivalent of the Nobel Prize, for actions he introduced as mayor of Naga City.

'Hopeful' but 'realistic'

In his home in Naga City, his father, Senator Juan P. Pano, 74, said he was "hopeful" but "realistic" about the search for Robredo and thanked Robredo and all the people who had been helping to give the family strength since Sunday.

"It is a big help to me," Pano said, adding that after three days, the family remained "hopeful" that his father would survive the crash. He said, however, that the family was not "hopeful" but "realistic" about the search.

"Nothing is impossible except God," he said. With reports from Michael Lee Ullow and Rolando Fabian Mangaray in Marikina, Marikina City, Cebu, Inquirer Staff, AP, AFP and Reuters.

Activists go ante in China, Japan dispute over islands

TOKYO—When Tokyo's nationalist government suggested buying uninhabited islands in the waters of a long-standing dispute with China, Beijing immediately denounced them and even Japan's government played down the plan, leading to international fireworks.

As activists on both sides have put the islands front-and-center to one of the biggest territorial flash-points between the two Asian powers, a collision of the nationalist sentiments and Japan's imperialist past and the new Asia's rising economic and military power.

An underwater landing by Japanese activists at a tiny island in the Senkaku chain—used by the Chinese call the Diaoyu—has sparked an upsurge of anger and anti-Japanese protests across China and fueled calls for aggressive nationalist action that some fear could lead to a dangerous escalation of tensions.

Japanese activists on Monday demonstrated at the 30 assembly members, who were active in the dispute island, the Diaoyu, in the East China Sea, and called for a large number of Chinese to hold demonstrations in 18 cities, where protesters sang the Chinese national anthem to celebrate the 90th birthday of the Japanese emperor.

Some activists suggested Japanese-led forces.

'Top Gun' director jumps to death

LOS ANGELES—British-born filmmaker Tony Scott, director of such Hollywood blockbusters as "Top Gun" and "Criminal Minds," died on his deathbed in his home in Los Angeles on Monday after a long battle with cancer, according to his family.

Scott, 69, was born in London and moved to Los Angeles in 1964. He worked for several years as a film editor before becoming a director. He is best known for his work on "Top Gun" and "Criminal Minds."

Scott's death was announced by his family on Monday. He had been in poor health for some time.

Scott's death was a surprise to many, as he had been in good health just a few days before he died.

China defers death sentence for Gu

BEIJING—A Chinese court on Monday handed Gu Kailai, the wife of a disgraced Communist Party leader, a suspended death sentence for killing a British business associate who she reportedly forced was plotting to harm her son. In the Chinese legal system, such a sentence is often tantamount to life in prison.

Gu could have been executed once the guilty verdict was announced, although some news agencies thought such a possible move would be a political move. The sentence was announced with a one-year reprieve, meaning that the threat of execution would be lifted after two years regardless of her good behavior.

The verdict and sentence appear to wrap up one of the most lurid chapters of a sweeping scandal that brought down Gu's husband, the 93rd, and disrupted the Communist Party during a politically delicate, once-a-decade leadership transition that is not in vogue in the fall.

Yang Yijun, deputy director of the 1000 Chinese People's Court in Anhui province, announced the sentence.

He Changping, the lawyer for the family of the victim, said, "We respect the court's decision."

Gu's maid, according to Yang Yijun, a household employee, was sentenced to three years in prison.

The government said the guilty verdict had been reached after 300 witnesses interviewed nearly 500 witnesses and heard more than 500 documents. Although few questioned Gu's role in the murder, rights activists have criticized her prosecution as driven more by public than by existing legal procedure. However, she was found to have government-appointed lawyers, who did not have access to case files before the trial began.

Gu's husband's Party leaders will now turn their attention to the case as reported to the all-powerful Politburo Standing Committee and the party boss of the southwestern municipality of Chongqing.

In October the death of many party leaders who were angered by his lack of popularity and his record of ruthless, brutal and corrupt behavior during his time in Chongqing, he was dropped in the spring after a failed bid to succeed the 93rd Committee in a wealthy city and a number of other positions.

Gu's husband's death was announced by his family and his funeral was held in Chongqing. Police officials who were ordered to help cover up the murder would be sentenced after Monday, said the city government.

Assange berates Washington from Ecuador Embassy balcony

LONDON—WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange berated the United States on Monday from the balcony of the Ecuadorian Embassy where he has sought refuge from arrest, denouncing President Barack Obama and what he called a witch-hunt against his WikiLeaks Movement.

Speaking from within the London embassy to avoid being detained by British police who want to extradite him to face charges for questioning wire-taps of American law enforcement, Assange said the United States was fighting a new space mission like WikiLeaks.

Competing instead in the new space race, Assange said the New York Times newspaper is also despoiling protection from espionage, Assange said the United States risked dragging the world into a dangerous war in which journalists would fall victim. He did not mention the rape allegations.

"The WikiLeaks motto under attack is the right to freedom of expression and the health of all of our societies," Assange said, dressed in a suit and tie and white shirt, and flanked by the police.

Assange, 41, took sanctuary in Ecuador's embassy in June, jumping, but after rebuffing appeals to British courts to extradite him to face charges, where he is accused of espionage and other allegations of rape and sexual assault against women.

He says he fears the authorities in London will generally hand him over to the United States, where, in his view, he would face persecution and long-term imprisonment. The United States says it is not involved in the matter.

To his surprise, Assange said he is being taken to the capital after a hearing done on an appeal four years ago, leading to his arrest.

He said Assange was not a threat to public security and was not seeking refuge in the diplomatic mission.

Despite being in custody, Assange said he was not being held in the world's largest prison, but in a balcony in his capital, Ecuador's foreign office building.

Assange's presence in the balcony is a symbol of the WikiLeaks movement, which is accused of leaking the world's largest database of secret US diplomatic and military cables to WikiLeaks, which has been accused of leaking the world's largest database of secret US diplomatic and military cables to WikiLeaks.

India asks Pakistan to help investigate root of panic among migrants

NEW DELHI—India's top domestic security official on Sunday called on the Pakistani government to investigate Indian claims that "violence" in Pakistan had led to a surge in Indian migrants fleeing to India.

Home Minister N. Chandrababu Naidu, speaking by telephone with his Pakistani counterpart, Prime Minister Yousaf Raza Gillani, asked for "full cooperation" in "checking and preventing such violence," according to a statement from the Indian government. His telephone call came a day after a senior Indian official said that dozens of Indian migrants had been seen in the border area of Pakistan.

Chow Chows dress up for the fight against cancer

The fabrics were carefully chosen and especially designed to keep the babies cool

BIG, CLUMBY fur-balls dressed in local history and fairy-tale characters embarked down the runway during the 18th anniversary of the Chow Chow Club of the Philippines Inc. (CCCP).

"CCP Chow Chow Club for Children with Cancer" held at the "Starry Plaza, McKinley Hills, Taguig, put out champagne frosts dressed as Peter Pan, Fairy Godmother, Snow White, Prince Charming, The Ugly Duckling, the Three Blind Mice and more from "Beauty and the Beast." The large struts dogs were dressed by pet costume designer Brenda Aleman, Leyte of Shodan Pet Center.

For looking, an 18-month-old Chow Chow, joining the fashion show must have been quite an experience. Used to the demanding discipline required when competing for the coveted and much of the champion - the Black Chow Chow for a change, walked down the ramp in costume. Looking appeared relaxed as the audience gawked at his handsome looks and shiny coat, he was purred for the cameras.

"I have never done anything like this before. It's also unusual, because I don't know how Dorothy will respond in the experience of walking in the spotlight, but it's been fun for me and my family," said Dorothy's owner, businessman Start Limjoco.

Elaborate costumes

This is the second time CCCP has held a fashion show, said Aileen, CCCP president. But for many Chow Chows on the ramp, this is their first time to get dressed. At all-in elaborate costumes at show. The fashion show, which was carefully chosen and especially designed by Limjoco, who knew that the pet parents' first experience would be keeping their babies cool the entire show.

"It was a tremendously challenging experience. For starters, I used to be scared of Chow Chows,"

The amazing power of alpha brain waves

HAVE YOU ever wondered why some people can see things that others can't, know what's going to happen before it does, describe a remote place they have never seen before, read other people's minds, heal themselves using only mental imagery or read a person like a book though the never met him before?

I have seen many of these seemingly impossible mental feats during the last 30 years that I have been researching these fields, now called parapsychology and channeling. ESP channels for over 60 years now both on and abroad.

Most of the people who are channel one or a combination of the above mental abilities were not psychics or clairvoyants, but ordinary individuals like office workers (e.g. housewives, accountants, clerks, computer analysts, scientists, the uneducated) who were able to determine or measure their different electrical patterns or waves. A piece of medical equipment called an electroencephalograph (EEG), invented by Dr. Hans Berger, showed that these persons have rhythms or waves, which scientists unfortunately called beta (from 14 to 21 cycles per second), alpha (from seven to 14 cps), theta (from seven to four cps) and delta (from almost zero to four cps).

Each of these brain waves has its own characteristics or properties. For instance, let us focus on the alpha brain waves, although in practice these brain waves may overlap.

Normally, when we close our eyes and relax by visualization or meditation, they usually settle down, to delta, which is the unconscious or sleep state. However, if we can slow down or reduce the frequency of our brain waves without falling asleep (which is one of the keys to understanding its powers), then a person can perceive certain mental tasks at one brain wave level which he can do at other brain wave levels.

Prescriptions

For example, at the alpha level, he or she can project his or her consciousness or awareness into the future and know what's going to happen before it does. Unluckily called precognitive trait, he can project his consciousness into the past and know what happened without being there (called retrocognition). He can project his awareness to another person, and know what he is thinking of (through telepathy). He can project his awareness to a distant place he has never been to before and describe it accurately (through remote viewing or traveling clairvoyance). He can also heal himself and others through mental imagery or visualization.

Why is this possible? Because it is believed that at the alpha level, the brain waves, the left brain hemisphere and those of the right are synchronized. And what this happens, he is able to consciously tap the tremendous knowledge hidden in the subconscious mind. Therefore, nothing matters to him at the alpha level without finding why after he obtains benefits and powerful experiences.

But without an EEG machine, how can anyone tell if he has reached the alpha level? There are subjective characteristics of the effects of the alpha waves, among which are the following:

1. Breathing and heart rate slow down.
2. Subject becomes completely peaceful both mentally and physically.
3. Body temperature may rise a few centigrades.
4. He/she may not enter with eye closure.
5. Eyes may automatically move rapidly toward target eye movements or REM, which are also experienced when dreaming.

6. Galactic daydreams (GDD) occurs.

7. The body may very slowly and passively as energy is released and his awareness expands.

The alpha rhythm is important not only because it enables us to perform some incredible things with our brains, but also, being in this state can boost our immune system and thus keep us healthy. Living into alpha of an immune system and increases mental ability that it needs to be practiced.

Brainpower

There are ways to protect this sensitive organ. This complex structure is one that will fulfill its destiny in the future. Brain function is unlike that of any other organ and is something to be treasured.

Do you know that the brain has its own immune system? When the brain's immune cells are compromised, you are making the conditions ripe for brain disease like Alzheimer's and Parkinson's.

Sometimes this system is in a weak state. Disorders may disturb and depress, then immune cells go into action. When active, the brain is in its defense mode, releasing brain cells. If these cells cannot switch into healing mode, they attack bacteria and virus.

Preventing Alzheimer's

It's all about protecting the brain from inflammation, which leads to mitochondrial dysfunction. In short, let's keep the brain's energy flowing.

Healthy diet.

There years ago being doing good with Alzheimer's, and it are the countries where she is affected but instead by feeding, feeding and eating her. She asked for a delectable question: "What are you?"

Alzheimer's disease was first described in 1906. Today it afflicts millions worldwide by destroying brain cells while eating their own. The disease causes over 100,000 deaths annually. Currently there is no cure, only medication that may slow the mental deterioration.

While Alzheimer's is a disease that affects those in their 70s, evidence shows that it can start years in their life and 10s.

Take the case of those, we understand in his and his. He became increasingly disoriented and prone to crime. Many in his Alzheimer's doctor, diagnosed that disease as a form of brain cancer. He called it brain cancer, and that's exactly what the old-age brain cancer (ABC) which is only found in a mother's milk, is a single neuron cell (CNS).

After decades of following his new regime, he experienced relief

Stress, which had been doing much with severe Alzheimer's two years ago, is now alive and thriving. While it spreads its tentacles, he can do other things like the new brain.

Kerosene therapy

Kerosene is high energy gas. It is produced in the liver. It is delivered to you as brain fuel.

Watch out, stress. Brain cells have difficulty metabolizing glucose, the brain's main energy source. To acquire optimal glucose, the brain is dependent on kerosene.

Brain's love it works. When a person uses food depleted of glucose, it causes the brain to burn. It's not just your stress you eat, think again - you are also taking your brain, as well.

MCT can also be used to replace glucose oil. This is the basis of the Brain Fuel, now being "Alzheimer's Fuel".

Doctors are called brain as perfect, say 100 research scientists at the National Institute of Health in Bethesda, Maryland, because it is all intricately new. Kerosene therapy is now coming to assist health experts even if not many are aware of it.

It is expected that patients may find relief from Alzheimer's disease, say today's doctors, epilepsy, traumatic amnesia, life-threatening and other metabolic disorders by applying kerosene therapy.

More good news

Night has its magic with F21. By taking a sublingual daily before bedtime, you spend your precious hours and promote fat-burning. Moreover, if you take a before meal, it will aid in more efficient digestion.

For a clear and healthy skin, place F21 on the palm of your hand. Rub gently and the oil is warm. Place both palms on your face. Allow your sense buds to receive the healing oil from your face. Rub the face of the oil from the forehead to the chin.

Allow it to stay overnight.

These morning buds and thus, "Your skin will become beautiful."

After taking "I claim your skin care and more."

Richard Gere to sell guitar collection

NOW YOUNG—Actor Richard Gere has a passion for American vintage guitars. Children's auction house in New York says it will be selling 116 of his guitars on Oct. 14. Gere, a well-known pianist and guitarist, says he's parting with the instruments to support humanitarian programs around the world. Included in the collection are guitars once owned by blues guitarist Albert King and reggae musician Peter Dinklage. The sale is expected to raise $1 million.

NEW YORK BORN Blues-rock singer-songwriter Joe Bonamassa will perform on Sept. 25 at One Esplanade, Mall of Asia complex.

Blues power

Supporters promote enduring musical style via Joe Bonamassa concert, local blues competition

By Pauline Concepcion

LOCAL fans of blues music and its derivative styles have reason to rejoice. Blues rock singer-songwriter Joe Bonamassa, who has collaborated with the likes of B.B. King, Buddy Guy, Eric Clapton and other legendary artists, is performing on Sept. 25, 8 p.m., at One Esplanade, SM Mall of Asia complex, Pasig City.

The event was formally announced during a recent media gathering at the newly opened club, the Boulevard Manila Bay at the Mall complex, whose aim, CEO-Catnip, is to also be the premier of the Bonamassa concert.

"Joe Bonamassa is the first blues musician in the world right now," CEO-Catnip said when he announced the event. He also said that Bonamassa is a Filipino musician. Prince Noyes, who also performs live, commented, "Joe Bonamassa is a Filipino, also from the Boulevard Manila."

Notes-for-note

Bonamassa, 36, is and is from New Bedford, New York. He has his first guitar as a gift from his father—at age 4.

He was only 7 years old when he started playing Steve Ray Vaughan and Jimi Hendrix rock n' roll songs.

At age 11, he learned to play country and jazz as well as pop. A year later, he moved to B.B. King.

When he was 15, he was invited to a friend's guitar concert at the New Coast. On that day, he met Eric Clapton. One of the blues legends (who's still alive), who was he invited to play with, along with Mike Dinklage, who was a blues legend (who's still alive).

Bonamassa released two albums which produced two hit singles, "Stone Cold Crazy" and "Stone Cold Crazy."

As a solo artist, Bonamassa has released 10 studio albums, seven of which have topped the US blues charts, including his latest record, "Driving Towards the Daylight," which came out in May.

In an interview with Guitarist magazine, he stated how album that had the biggest influence on his playing. Eric Clapton & the Bluesbreakers with Eric Clapton (the "Blues" album), Ray Charles' "I'm a Man," Cream's "Goodbye" and Eric Ray Vaughan's "Stone Cold Crazy."

In the same interview, Bonamassa also stated how his influences.

WHAT'S ON AT ROBINSONS

"My thinning hair is aging me faster than wrinkles!"

If you can relate to the statement above, you're not alone. A huge percentage of women, especially in their 30s, are noticing that hair loss from the top, the crown and other skin changes, graying and thinning hair are the biggest problems of men's age. Worse, the state of your hair can even make you appear older than you really are!

Unfortunately, women find that thinning hair is harder to treat than graying strands. While hair dye is the quick solution for the latter, many are frustrated with having their thinning locks to naturally-looking full, thick hair.

Crowning Glory No More?

According to Sella, 41, "I take good care of my skin. I use anti-aging creams—the works. But over time, my hair started to thin out. I've been looking older and older! It's horrible. I've been coloring, shampooing and hair extensions. The extensions helped—but all of a sudden, someone asked me if my hair was real. It was so embarrassing because I had to admit I wasn't 20! I wish there was a solution that would magically turn my hair thicker again."

Thinning hair can only help improve the texture of your hair but they won't promote hair regrowth. Hair extensions are a temporary fix and can sometimes be painful to wear. The more natural-looking extensions are quite pricey too!

More Than a Bad Hair Day

Agnes, 40, says her thinning hair occurred right when her marriage started. "It was quite unbearable," she says. "I was very emotional, my hair fell out, and when my hair started falling out, I became a wreck! It was awful. I had low self-esteem and I didn't want to go out just because my hair looked awful. So, my friends don't just let me know, they tell me what hair day is, so I can fix it."

Many women complain about experiencing hair loss during menopause. It's difficult to go through a rising phase especially when you're not feeling good about yourself. Boost your self-esteem by getting prepared and giving yourself a good hair day—a good makeover!

The System Solution

System has been a trusted name in haircare solutions for men for many years, both locally and internationally. However, not everyone is aware that System also offers haircare solutions for women's hair problems as well. System offers advanced hair regrowth solutions created by internationally-renowned trichologists that guarantee results.

So if you want to look younger, longer, thicker and a much Don't even think about wigs and extensions. Look younger with naturally-better hair with The System Solution.

"The Composer's Blueprint"
MCA Music

The guys at MCA Music Philippines can't locate how to talk music. Now that Richard Posen has signed with another label, it's the perfect opportunity to release this all-in-one 30-track "best of" CD that will give you a complete picture of Posen's career and style.

Since jazz is music for all seasons, the songs here—most of which were written by Posen—may be enjoyed in any genre day, probably at night, alone or with a loved one.

Although Posen's music is quite quiet, it's not a quiet music. It's a music that speaks volumes of the talent of the artist in the field.

Consider the lyrics: "I'm a jazz musician, I'm a jazz musician, I'm a jazz musician, I'm a jazz musician." It's a simple, yet powerful statement. It's a statement that speaks volumes of the talent of the artist in the field.

There's a lot of music in this CD. It's a CD that speaks volumes of the talent of the artist in the field.

Sunshine, Ara, China busy with their new 'babies'

WHAT do Sunshine Grafton-Smith, Ara Wilson and China Grafton-Smith have in common? They have new "babies" that will delight the public as well.

Sunshine's designer bags
Sunshine is selling one of her designer bags via her online store, the Sunshine Store.

"I always give away some of my old bags," she said. "And I also sell a few of them, but I love the feeling of my friends. It gives me a boost."

I can imagine her baby's baby, because he will have more than one.

Ara's baked goodies
Ara has returned from baking classes, parties and cakes which she brought home with her. She's a baker, she's a baker, she's a baker.

I found Ara. Ara has been baking for years. Ara has been baking for years. Ara has been baking for years.

Philippine All-Stars rocks with consistent winning moves

Origin to fame:
Bogged the Grand Prix in the 2005 and 2008 Hip-Hop Dance Championships, making history for the Philippines as the first Asian country to win World Dance Finals, won 1st place at the 2008 Hip-Hop Dance Championships in Singapore, 2007 and the 2008 Hip-Hop Dance Championships in Zurich, Switzerland in 2008.

Group Composition:
Formed in 2003 by a group of friends who were passionate about dancing and hip-hop, the Philippine All-Stars then grew into a group of around 30, composed of members from diverse backgrounds and interests like styling, hosting, graphic designing, painting and writing.

Signature style:
"From the fancy choreographed moves, it's a combination of both modern and traditional moves that we do. We do a mix of old and new and we let our audience feel our energy."

Their biggest achievement:
"We are proud to have been instrumental in putting the name for the Philippine hip-hop community and other local dance groups to be recognized in the international scene. We opened up doors to those who want to pursue a career in dancing, especially after we founded the All-Stars Dance School in San Jose."

How do you apply consistency in what you do?
"We are always in a state of the most competitive we have participated in and the most performance we have done for different audiences around the world, the same level of passion and discipline remains in every member."

What they say about the Grand Prix 2008 Super Finals show:
"The Grand Prix of the 2008 Grand Prix Finals was a great experience. It was a great experience. It was a great experience. It was a great experience."
